Situated in the East of England, just 60 miles, or 45 minutes by train, from London, Cambridge has excellent road, rail and air access. The world-famous University and its Colleges are at its core and offer over 550 different meeting and dining spaces, from ancient, oak panelled halls to contemporary study suites with state-of-the-art AV for meetings and conferences. Accommodation options include 6500 bedrooms during vacation periods and a range of 3* and 4* hotels situated throughout the centre and close to conference facilities.

Cambridge is a compact city and easily discovered on foot, or in the traditional way - by bicycle! The vibrant arts and cultural scene, museums, cinemas, art galleries, pubs and restaurants are just a short stroll away from the meeting venues. The wider region provides excellent options for social activities and interesting places to visit; the home of horse-racing, Newmarket, the historic Wool Towns of Suffolk or the beaches of Norfolk are just a short distance away and perfect for day trips, pre or post conference vacations.

Delegates can immerse themselves in academic ambience and follow in the footsteps of famous Alumni in a city that has been at the heart of world-changing discoveries for centuries. Today it is a city of innovation embracing entrepreneurial spirit and ground-breaking research. There's a tangible passion for the sharing of knowledge between academia and business, this - together with its history, beautiful architecture, arts and culture make Cambridge and the region the place to meet.
